Boscobel City officials evaluate risks

By JOE HART

A flood, a wildfire, a cyber-attack, and a rail accident. Sounds like a Hollywood blockbuster—but it's business as usual in the world of "hazard mitigation." That's the process by which municipalities prepare for the worst when it comes to natural and man-made disasters, and Boscobel officials number these four threats as their top concerns.

It's a hot topic in the city in part because officials from the Southwestern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission (SWRPC) came to town last Wednesday to host a workshop on the subject, and in part because of the alleged mishandling of the train wreck in Ohio. (See story, page 2.)

"A train goes through Boscobel, and most of us assume that its grain going through, but there are tanker cars as well, and you just kind of wonder, what's in those tanker cars?"

Do we have a right to know?" asked Brian Kendall. The fourth ward alder raised the issue for discussion and possible future action at the start of the Common Council's February 20 public meeting.

"Are we prepared if something would happen? If it does happen, what do we do? Where do we go?" Kendall asked.

Regional coordination

It just so happens that City Administrator Patricia Smith had represented Boscobel at the SWRPC workshop and reported that the city was in the process of creating a hazard mitigation plan.

Some two dozen representatives of area municipalities attended the event, held at the Boscobel fire district headquarters. The process is overseen by Wisconsin Emergency Management and executed at both the county and municipal level, according to Ellen Tyler, Community Resiliency Planner for SWRPC. SWRPC assists in the process.

"The public meetings will go through March, and then we'll submit to Wisconsin Emergency Management probably at the end of April." After a 45-day review period, each community is required to adopt it officially. The plans must be updated every five years.

At the gatherings, Tyler and her colleagues collect information from the participants: what disasters they worry about, what populations are vulnerable to their impacts, and what services they have available, including mutual aid.

SWRPC also shares information with local officials, including past trends and future predictions, as well as best practices in mitigation.

Consensus among attendees

Each participant had to name the top three potential hazards for their jurisdiction. Flooding was the clear frontrunner among the communities clustered around the Wisconsin and Kickapoo rivers. Much of the City of Boscobel lies in the 100- and 500-year floodplain.

"More and more, the 100-year floods come every couple of years, so that 500-year floodplain is that we seriously look at now," Tyler said.

Boscobel's most recent flood inundated half the city and damaged hundreds of structures.

Behind flooding, participants flagged high wind and tornados, which we've also experienced recently. Participants also identified heat, drought, and disruption of lifelines like electricity or fuel as particularly likely.

Climate change effects

With a few exceptions, virtually all the hazards can be linked to a warming planet, and nearly everyone participating in the event indicated that they expected to be managing climate-change impacts.

The meeting included both historical and projected "worst-case-scenarios" for climate-change impacts like the annual number of days above 95 degrees and the number of adverse weather events.

"Emergency Management is so much about scenarios what might happen," Tyler explained. "So we look at what are the worst case scenarios?"

When it comes to these impacts, the Great Lakes Region, including Wisconsin, look to enjoy the best worst-case: with crop yields increasing, plenty of water, and isolated from coastal sea rise, western forest fires, and southern droughts.

But Tyler warns that we're far from immune. "On the one hand, this looks like we're the haven. But we're still clearly impacted if everywhere else is doing this poorly."

The supply-chain disruptions we experienced during the pandemic were comparatively minor, and our "haven" might become a magnet for the rest of the country.

"Something we want to talk about with people is are we prepared to welcome people, and what would that look like?" Tyler said.

of course they're paying ours. Where we can share facilities, I think it makes sense."

The $254,000 price tag would be covered by the proposed referendum that the district is floating in the spring election. The work would include new fencing, dugouts, and scoreboard, as well as various upgrades. The minimum price for a brand-new field would start at $2 million, according to Wallin-Kapinus. The school would convert the east field at Kronschage Park and share its maintenance and upkeep with the city.

Build-out plan questioned

The lone vote in opposition to the collaboration came from first ward Alderman Gary Kjos, who questioned the school about its expansion plan.

The current proposal expands to the south toward the park, and into the existing baseball field, instead of north toward Brindley Street.

"Why didn't they build out there in front where all that grass is off the front?" Kjos questioned. "The school board years ago bought them houses up for future expansion, not back in a big old baseball field that's already done."

Wallin-Kapinus explained that the space in front of the school would force the architects to leave many classrooms and interior spaces without natural lighting, and that access through Brindley street would be inadequate for the traffic. Instead, handicapped parking will be located to the north, while the southeast corner would include a loop for parents and busses to navigate at drop-off and pickup.

"We have so much looping, people dropping kids off and buses and cars," said Wallin-Kapinus. "It's a busy, busy place," she said.

New Assistant Chief

Travis Dregne will replace Kevin Copus as Boscobel's Assistant Chief of Police. Copus retires in April.

Police Chief Jaden McCullick told the council that officers Dregne and Sid Kirschbaum submitted letters of interest for the open position.

"I think it's worth noting that both are extremely qualified for that position," McCullick said. "It was my opinion that Travis has an edge with training and experience. I don't want to say that to slight Sid in any way shape or form because he is also very, very qualified. But I do think the edge goes to Travis with that one, as far as the training experience goes, and I think he's better suited for the job in that respect."

The council approved the hire unanimously. This leaves an officer position open, and

Grant County residents brainstorm emergency response strategies

BY GRACE NIELAND

DICKEYVILLE, Wis. — As Misty Molzof led a small group through a hazardous response exercise in Dickeyville on Tuesday, she tried to get them to think about those in the community who might need the most help.

"If you think about if something bad happens in your community, who is taking care of the kids?" prompted Molzof, local government services specialist for Southwestern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. "What might they need?"

The group mulled it over, throwing out ideas like finding ways to teach kids where to go in an emergency or working to bolster phone service in the area to make sure communication could still occur in an emergency.

Each response got added to a large sheet of paper listing potentially vulnerable communities, including children as well as non-English speaking individuals and tourists.

The exercise was part of a hazard mitigation meeting meant to garner feedback from citizens in Grant County about the county's emergency and disaster management. Around 30 attendees walked through the meeting's stations Tuesday dedicated to topics like hazard identification, vulnerable populations and climate change.

It was the last of four such meetings countywide, and the input will be used by Southwestern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and the Grant County Hazard Mitigation Planning Team to create the 2023 Grant County hazard mitigation plan, which will be completed later this year.

"We did this five years ago (for the 2018 plan), and this is kind of the updated version," said Community Resiliency Planner Ellen Tyler. "There are strategies for the whole county, but there are also sections in the plan for every municipality."

When attendees arrived, they were given stickers to place on a list next to the top potential hazards they saw in Grant County. Weather events like flooding and tornadoes swiftly racked up votes, while a few people chose to place their stickers next to cyberattacks or climate change.

Justice Kelly, of Platteville, put his sticker next to "hazardous materials incident and radiological release."

"If we have a chlorine spill ... or a train wreck or if we get a semi-tanker going through that has hazardous materials, that's going to be a problem," Kelly said.

Grant County Emergency Management Director Steve Braun said public interest in addressing any potential hazardous spill has increased since the recent derailment of a train in Ohio that released dangerous chemicals into the air.

If such an event were to occur in Grant County, Braun said area fire departments would work to address any immediate fires or spills until the railroad could respond.

He added that any potential hazardous situation could be further helped by a public notification system that could notify residents of a certain area of an emergency or offer simple instructions.

"A notification system where we could send out those messages, I think that would be extremely beneficial for the county," Braun said. "It's something that's not there right now ... but that's something on the table that I plan to bring up during budget time."

Lessons Learned/Proposed Updates to Hazard Mitigation Plan:

Appendix G: GCEM Evaluation of Previous Plan Mitigation Strategies

GCEM completed the following evaluations of the mitigation measures listed in the 2018 Grant County Hazard Mitigation Plan.

GCEM Evaluation of 2018 Mitigation Measures
Mitigation Measure	Completion	Notes
Develop and update a County-Wide Emergency Operations Plan. Educate those responsible for implementation.	Somewhat	We spent a good deal of time on updating the plan however had very little time to dedicate to training/education.
Develop and fund a county- wide emergency wireless mass-notification system.	No	Lack of funding has prevented implementation.
Maintain and support the County and Local Community Fire & EMS use of a Mutual Aid Box Alarm System (MABAS).	Yes	MABAS has been adopted however some fire departments are not investing the time necessary to develop box alarm cards.
Develop a “Functional Need Database” identifying the locations of isolated, vulnerable, or special need populations in Grant County.	No	Individual agencies maintain this information however are unable or reluctant to share data.
Address existing Public Safety Radio and paging problems. Continue to monitor and maintain this system.	Yes	The new Grant County Communications System will be online in 2024.
Maintain the Regional Technical Partnership to address technical rescue situations.	Yes	Regional partnerships need to be maintained. Teams need more formal leadership and training need to be kept up.
Assure that future land use planning is consistent with mitigation strategies identified in this Plan and in the County’s Comprehensive Plan.	Yes
Continue to support and comply with Wisconsin Uniform Dwelling Code (UDC) in construction and improvements to all buildings within the County to assure that buildings are best able to safely withstand natural hazards that may occur.	Yes
Work with Local Governments to identify locations that can serve as public shelters in emergency situations and/or explore building public storm shelters.	Somewhat	This is an ongoing process. Realignment of the American Red Cross organization has resulted in a decrease in coordination/communication.
Develop Emergency Response Plan for all Local School Districts, Colleges, and Universities.	No	This is more a responsibility of the individual school districts/facilities than the county. The county’s emergency response functions are outlined in the county EOP.

GCEM Evaluation of 2018 Mitigation Measures
Mitigation Measure	Completion	Notes
Educate local governments on the benefit of having sufficient back-up power sources so that facilities may continue to provide basic services during times of power failure.	Somewhat	All but one of the Grant County's cities and villages have at least one location that has backup power and heat where people can go during a long-term power outage in the winter/freezing temps.
Support and facilitate mutual aid agreements among local government and the county to address emergency priorities and share equipment.	Somewhat	Cities and villages participate in public works cooperative arrangements that are beneficial and should continue to be encouraged.
Work with communities to develop Hazardous Material Response Plan.	Yes	GCEM works each year to update plans for facilities who use or store extremely hazardous chemicals, and to train emergency responders for handling these types of emergencies.
Host Emergency Awareness events including Tornado and/or Severe Weather Awareness Week in March or April of each year.	Somewhat
Post emergency awareness information to the Grant County Website and/or social media.	Yes	The Grant County Website was used as a primary means of disseminating emergency information during the COVID-19 pandemic. However, the website is extremely out of date and hard to navigate, and the county has been looking for quite some time at ways to modernize it.
Coordinate road construction projects with storm water management projects in areas with regular flooding and washouts.	Yes
Utilize grant funding to purchase and distribute weather radios among residents.	No
Explore training Community Emergency Response Teams for the County.	No	In lieu of CERT, we would recommend expanding the GCEM auxiliary/volunteer program and holding more frequent meetings.
Support and comply with State regulations assuring real estate disclosure of hazardous pre-existing property conditions.	Yes
Educate local businesses on the benefits of developing a Continuity of Operations Plan.	Somewhat	The COVID-19 pandemic forced most businesses to evaluate continuity of operations in some manner.
Continue to actively promote and participate in the National Flood Insurance Program.	Yes

GCEM Evaluation of 2018 Mitigation Measures
Mitigation Measure	Completion	Notes
Continue to enforce State and Local floodplain zoning standards and regulations.	Yes
Work with local governments on road, bridge, and other infrastructure planning to better meet flood standards.	Yes
Work with WIDNR and GCEM to update Waste Water Treatment Plan and sewer and water infrastructure	Yes	Communities have had to make significant upgrades to treatment plans due to phosphorus standards.
Coordinate road construction projects with storm water management projects in areas with regular flooding and washouts.	Yes
Continue to enforce the County Subdivision Ordinance requiring engineering for development near or within a delineated floodplain or flood prone area.	Yes
As feasible, acquire land with structures that are located within the flood plains to remove structures and enforce permanent restrictions on development for these parcels.	Yes	Since the last plan update, we have acquired and demolished Grant County's last repetitive loss residence in the Mississippi River Floodplain, as well as a number of flash-flood prone structures in Cassville.
Consider adopting a county-wide storm water ordinance. Encourage local municipalities to do the same; encouraging those who already have an ordinance to enforce it.	No
Continue to invest in technologies such as county wide Light Detection & Ranging (LiDAR) on floodplains to improve local knowledge of floodplain areas.	Somewhat	Grant County Land Information continues to update LiDAR data periodically.
Work with WIDNR and private landowners to inspect, address, and maintain dams.	No	There are several areas in the county where modifications to retention structures (legally classified as dams) would likely aid in mitigating dangerous and costly flash flooding occurrences. However, issues of liability, compliance, and ownership have prevented action.
Educate Local Governments on benefits of storm water ordinances, systems, and best practices.	Yes

GCEM Evaluation of 2018 Mitigation Measures
Mitigation Measure	Completion	Notes
Work with and educate landowners in upstream areas of creeks and rivers prone to flash flooding in communities.	No	Some community flooding issues are caused by plugged culverts/stormwater canals due in part to disposal of tree debris in areas where it can be washed into these channels.
Work with Local Governments to identify locations that can serve as public shelters in emergency situations and/or explore building public storm shelters.	Somewhat	Numerous communities are exploring grant applications to fund shelter facilities. A number of communities have added generators and backup heating to community facilities that could serve as small shelters.
Specialized equipment is needed for winter rescue (e.g. snow-mobiles), explore agreements with other organizations to use their equipment during these emergencies.	No
Identify the locations where snow fencing is needed and install fencing where needed.	Yes
Encourage Fire Departments in partnership with their governing entities to create and distribute information pamphlets on “reducing structural ignitability” and “emergency preparedness” relevant to wildfires.	Somewhat	The DNR has conducted some direct outreach, and most fire departments as well as GCEM conduct social media campaigns during peak wildfire season.
Develop and implement plan to utilize dry hydrants and possible irrigation hook-ups in areas with high wild-fire vulnerability.	Somewhat	DNR has made funding available for 50% match of dry hydrant construction in appropriate locations.
Encourage Fire Departments to educate their served populations of “Fuel Reduction Strategies” and work with their governing entities to enact required strategies for the overall protection of the community.	Somewhat
Encourage and Promote Crop Insurance	Yes
Encourage crop and livestock that is compatible with climate and landscape, as well as crop insurance.	Yes
Identify and educate residents on locations for emergency relief. Especially relating to extreme heat and extreme cold.	Yes	Shelters with backup heating/cooling have been identified in all but one of Grant County’s cities and villages. Residents are notified on an as-needed basis since shelters are only opened for extraordinary events.

GCEM Evaluation of 2018 Mitigation Measures
Mitigation Measure	Completion	Notes
Work with Local Governments to identify locations that can serve as public shelters in emergency situations and/or explore building public storm shelters.	Somewhat	Shelters in most communities have limited capacity. Most of these facilities are fire stations or other public safety organizations that would experience disruption if their building was used as an emergency shelter, any communities would benefit from more resilient shelters that were independent of critical government functions.
Maintain the Regional Technical Partnership to address technical rescue situations.	Somewhat	Although some technical rescue training has been conducted and equipment has been maintained, a need exists for a more formal structure for the regionalized team to address policy/protocol training.
Support mutual aid agreements among local government and the county to address emergency priorities and share equipment.	Somewhat
Develop regulation and ordinance to address existing and emerging sinkholes.	No	Sinkholes are address on a per-incident basis.
Develop plan and database to keep track of current sinkholes and subsidence properties in Grant County.	No	Currently no plan in place to create or maintain a database, however this is a good goal for the future.
Post information to the Grant County Website reminding and informing the public and developers that mineshafts and limestone both exist through the County and that they can lead to sinkholes and subsistence.	No	This is not a heavily trafficked source of information to the public and local developers.
Work with Local Fire and EMS Depts. to develop and train on Hazardous Material Spill response plan.	Yes
